Come down to the shop and enjoy a social and informative evening that is targeted to making you faster.

From tire tread on the wheels, the pressure in the suspension and all the way up to the rider's placement on the saddle, the mountain bike and rider become a very dynamic machine. Knowing and understanding how each of these parts work independently as well as together will make you a better rider and allow you to have more fun. Our goal is to provide the help and information you need to answer your questions. With all the off-road racing available in our area and the Northwest (Off-road tri locally, XTERRA, Mountain bike Nationals in Ketchum and Marathon Nations in Bend, local MTB races) we will hit home with some key information that falls under the “making you faster” category.

Local Xterra professional triathlete Adam Wirth will lead the discussion, with help from the expert shop mechanics at World Cycle. Off-road Triathlon is one of the fastest growing subsets of the racing arena, and anyone who's bumped and banged their way through a typical off-road course knows how important feeling good on the bike is to having a fun and fast race.

Topics will include:

- Tire selection – this can make or break an off-road race.
- Tire Pressure- depending on the course this could save you minutes.
- Going Tubeless- we will have a full demonstration on how to get you up and running tubeless in a simple and self manageable way.
- Suspension and bike choice – what is new out there and how can I make the most out my current setup.
